

Recovery and Resilience Facility: NL priorities ahead of the trilogue

- For the Netherlands, the essence of RRF lies in promoting growth-enhancing reforms. Therefore, recovery and resilience plans (RRP) will have to include ambitious reforms. Starting point is that all CSR's (from 2020 and 2019) must be addressed. The condition of addressing challenges identified in the European Semester should require the highest ("A") score.
- Recovery and resilience plans should be approved by way of a Council implementing decision, on a proposal from the Commission. Delegated acts are not a suitable instrument, as the adoption of plans does not concern supplementing or amending the regulation.
- The disbursement of funds needs to be properly anchored in the RRF Regulation, in line with the agreement in the July European Council. Decisions on disbursement should be taken by implementing act, taking into account the opinion of the EFC. The emergency procedure needs to remain intact.
- The 10% pre-financing in the Council position is a compromise and should not be increased. The Netherlands is not in favor of pre-financing because it is not linked to targets and milestones.
- The deadline for commitments should be set at 31 December 2023, and the deadline for payments at 31 December 2026. As agreed by the July European Council. As the RRP is a temporary crisis instrument, its duration needs to be limited.
- Funds that are decommitted or recovered automatically are used to lower the net-borrowing need. They cannot be re-used for EU expenditure.
- The table below reflects the main issues on which Parliament and Council positions differ. Crucial textual differences are highlighted in yellow and purple (purple = not part of ER conclusions).

The reference to CSRs aimed at debt sustainability and macro-economic imbalances makes clear that these must be taken seriously. • It is important that the starting point is that all CSRs must be addressed. If MS prioritise, they must be able to justify this in view of the objectives of the RRF. • The criterion of addressing the challenges identified in the CSR's should require an A-score (B-score should not be permitted.
