

Knowledge Partner

Managing a distributed workforce

A Global Government Forum webinar, run in association with Unit4

Tuesday 21 July 2020

USA/Canada Eastern Time (EST): 10:30 to 11:45

British Summer Time (BST): 15:30 to 16:45

Western European Summer Time (WEST): 16:30 to 17:45

Singapore Time (SGT): 22:30 to 23:45

Australian Eastern Standard Time (AEST): 00:30 to 01:45

New Zealand Standard Time (NZST): 02:30 to 03:45

www.globalgovernmentforum.com

In response to COVID-19, governments around the world have asked millions of staff to work remotely – and for managers and leaders, that brings a particular set of challenges. How can line managers support effective collaboration and distribute work equitably, while fitting employees' responsibilities around their unique home circumstances? What kinds of communications from senior executives best strengthen people's morale and sense of common purpose in the face of the pandemic? How can activities such as recruitment, training and performance management be shifted into the digital world? And what changes are required to HR policies and systems?

Handled well, remote working can improve productivity, innovation and staff engagement – but to succeed, public leaders need the right skills, tools and processes. Bringing together senior civil servants from around the world, this webinar will examine how line managers, senior executives and HR functions can realise the potential – and sidestep the pitfalls – of managing a distributed workforce.

Should you have any questions regarding the event, please contact (10)(2e) on:

(10)(2e)

E: (10)(2e) globalgovernmentforum.com