Dear [5.1.2e]

Thanks for your email. I'm forwarding this to the relevant people and reply to you in English for my colleagues to understand.

Of course we will support you in the best we can. We've been meeting on a weekly basis with your development team ([5.1.2e], DICTU and others), trying to fix all kinds of issues along the way. Especially my colleague @ [5.1.2e] from our developers team has been working closely alongside your team for the past few weeks.

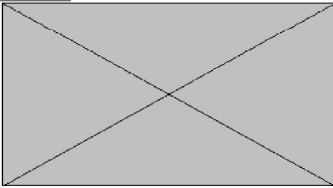

Unfortunately both [5.1.2e] and I will be on holidays next week (both have been scheduled long before our involvement), but since we are only part of a bigger team we believe our work is in safe hands. From my side both @ [5.1.2e] and @ [5.1.2e] will be your POCs for next week. @ [5.1.2e] will be back the week after. @ [5.1.2e] will replace [5.1.2e] next week.

Your development team has been informed about this so they know whom to reach out to. But again, not to worry, this has always been a team effort and all the above mentioned people have been involved in the background at some stage during this process.

Good luck with everything!

Kind regards,

[5.1.2e]

Dag 5.1.2e

Voor de zekerheid in het Engels de vraag aan jullie of jullie komende week wat extra kunnen helpen indien nodig ☺:

Dear 5.1.2e

We are now planning go-live for the Dutch Corona Notification app, called CoronaMelder, on August 17th 2020. This will be a soft launch, in that it is an extended test in a number of regions in the Netherlands with the public health authorities in those regions. Formal introduction in our country now is foreseen for September 1st. But we intend to publish the app in the app stores as of August 17.

The Dutch team believes the go-live on August 17th 2020 is feasible and given the increasing number of Corona cases, in The Netherlands as well, the need for the app launch is believed to be instrumental in effectively mitigating the second wave.

Given the fact that we still need to finish some final chain-testing and the fact that we will continue testing during and after launch, the team expects some urgent fixes to be required during or shortly after the store submission next week. Can I ask your support in providing the best possible service in helping us out if these fixes are required.

Kind regards,

5.1.2e
