Aha – we'll look out for the preprint then?

Yes, all well here – I've just finished a vaccine epi book with [5.1.2e], that kept me busy over the past years, should come out this summer I think – and have given up managerial roles since first of Feb so can hopefully dedicate more time to epi work.

Good weekend!

Hopefully submitting a paper early next week, will also be sending some stuff to EMA

Hope you are keeping well, hard to imagine ever travelling abroad again but maybe see you next year?

No the Scottish data is a bit random - we did not show this with the SIREN data, or our TNCC data, or our data on hospitalisation (below)

Dear 5.1.2e

Just to let you know that we've published our first impact figures:

<https://www.rivm.nl/nieuws/eerste-effecten-vaccinatie-zichtbaar-onder-bewoners-verpleeghuizen>

There is clear impact on the incidence of notified cases in residents of care homes ('verpleeghuizen'), not so much in other elderly where the coverage is still low.

Thanks for publishing your PHE estimates (file 22 feb), this is very helpful.

We're at the moment discussing changes in the programme: giving AZ also to people over 65; giving already infected people only one dose; and deferral of the 2nd dose to 3 months for Pfizer. For the latter we were a bit concerned to see some waning after one Pfizer dose in the Scottish results (Vasileiou et al). Do you think this is real?

With best wishes,
