

about the coronavirus outbreak this Thursday morning. We'll have another update for you at 18:00 BST.

1. Long drives for coronavirus tests

The coronavirus testing system is struggling to keep up with demand, with shortages reported in some areas where there are fewer cases because tests are needed elsewhere. It means some people with symptoms have been directed to drive-through testing centres more than 100 miles away.

A thick, horizontal pink line is drawn under the sentence "more than 100 miles away." in the paragraph above.
